

Biking is good for businesses

The 'Gables Greenways' will be one of the first built segments of the Coral Gables Bicycle Master Plan. They are planned to connect downtown Coral Gables north to 8th Street, and south to the Underline, the University of Miami, and the Old Cutler Trail. The work is planned to break ground at the end of 2018.

The project is an important step forward, but is already being scrutinized by some groups for changing how we allocate road space. Unfortunately, there is a real danger that these new bikeways will never be implemented if their detractors shout louder than their supporters. Now is the time for businesses leaders in Coral Gables to speak up for safer streets and world-class transportation options. We are encouraging supporting businesses to join us in asking our elected officials to not delay the implementation of this important upgrade to downtown mobility and quality of life.

Company statements are needed, outlining the reasons why your company supports the new separated bike lanes. Find more information and template letters at:
